There has been a great stir about a species of ant imported from South America to wage war on the boll weevil. We don't profess to know anything about this particular species of the formicid tribe, but we know nothing praise worthy of any specimen of ant, excep that his diggings are reccommended to slug gards as an object lesson. There are certain species of this tribe that the sluggard or any one else, should they desire to investigate had better do so at a safe distance, unless they want to be dissected. Bill Arp says, "that he could never see why the ant should have been selected as a paragon of wisdom any way; that of all fool insects the ant is the biggest." As one illustration of his folly, he said that an ant would pick up a load severa times heavier than himself and if he came to a bush several thousand times higher than himself he would go up one side and come down on the other not observing that he might have walked around.

We remember once passing through meadow in the Phillippines where these pes tiferous insects held complete sway. The meadow was grown up in bushes which had been denuded of every leaf of their foliage Immense nests, some as large as a bushe measure, were made among the branches of the trees. Curious to know what it was we approached one of these nests which was covered with large black ants. On going a little nearer, a Filipino boy accompanying us gave an unmistakable yell of terror and he speedily informed us in his broken lingo that we were on dangerous ground, and we retreated. There are certain kinds of trop ical ants that frequently attack animals and There are the small black ants that enter your house in the tropics where they parade by the million. Twenty-four hours a day they march in rows and columns and batall ions and regiments and divisions; you may be come desperate and spend a day wreaking dire vengeance and killing a million or so but the next morning, there he is, as large as life, on his everlasting forward march. There is the wonderful little wood ant, or carpenter ant, as we find it in our Little Na ture Studies. It is ailright to read about in books, but when it comes to dealing with him, he makes you wish insect powder was worth 2-cts a barrel so you could buy a plantation of it. This little ant is a grea carpenter, but he likes to work on finished material too well. He delights to use his little saw on choice pieces of furniture but i he can't reach this he will saw the flooring out of your house, or saw the corner of the house into saw-dust. The lives of the Patriarchs ant Prophets says that this little and is white on account of a signal service rendered the Isrealites. This book says Solomon was wont to go to the tempfe and worship in his old age, and sometimes remained days at a time leaning upon his staff in the temple; as he was king no one dared to ap proach or molest him. So it was Solomon dled in this attitude and these little ants at up his staff and Solomon fell and the people knew he was dead. Somehow we don' believe this, but if these ants did perform a good deed it is the first time we ever heard Again There is the little red ant that lives in the garden in the tropics. If we call the carpenter ant we might call this one the gardener ant, he is a great gardener at any rate. As fast as you put your seed in the ground he manages to take them out. We planted some lettuce seed in the garden and the little red fellows dug them up and carried them off, then we planted in a box and the innocent little red things promptly went to work and cleaned away every vestige of seed. We planted a third time and scattered insect powder, carbolic acid, etc. over the box in order to stop the little rascals, but they continued gardening-we discontinued it.

Wonderful little fellow he is, Lice Som times get on grape vines. You may have seen ants visiting them. Do the ants kill them? Watch and see. The greatest harm he does is to bring the louse a lively whack on one side and then on the other until the louse gives up a drop of Sacharine Matter which the ants devours. It is said that they even protect the eggs of the lice as they

It is a dangerous thing to bring into this country animals and insects unless we know all about them.

You recall how the mongoose was brought into the West Indies to exterminate a pest and the mongoose turned out the worst pest of the two. Now in regard to this little weevil fighting ant: We know nothing about him but we do know that a reward of £20,000 was offered to exterminate an ant that held sway in the one of the Grenadine Islands this ant seemed to be a kind of gardener ant too, for its home wrs at the roots of cane and other plants which they so undermined and sapped as to destroy the plants.

We would suggest that the Department of Agriculture carry on their experiment with ants in Jamaica.

The beauty of the shade tree is apparent. To appreciate its utility one has but to emerge from the friendly shade of the interlocking branches "in the good old summer time."

Shade is seductive. It furnishes a meta phor for the religionist. It is the scene of the youthful lovers' dream and the very heaven of the lazy man. In fact it is at once a triend and enemy of mankind. An enemy in that it entices from active labor-a friend in that it forces the inventive shade lover to devise methods by which he and his fellowman remain under its friendly protection. We love the shade; all men love the shade; and so we can all heartly congratulate our city council on the work they have done in planting shade trees. We would urge upon them the importance of continuing the work on the main streets, and of protecting the trees after they are planted.

We should admonish our small boys not to ride or disfigure the trees, not that the cost of replanting is so great, but because it delays the work of beautifying the city.

IN CLASSIC HALLS.

Son of Erskine Goes Back to the

J. E. McDonalo, Esq., of Winnsboro, was among the distinguished guests at the Due West commencement last week. Mr. McDonald was graduated from Erskine, and his eminent success at the bar, since he left college, has made him one of his alma mater's most honored sons. He is now regarded as a probable judge of his circuit, at no distant day. Campus.

The different forms of Salutations throughut the world are as varied as they are amusing. The Polyneian Spiffs his friends, the Eskimo and Laplanders rub noses, the and can fix you up for your Australian, embracing his knees with one hand scratches the face of his friend with the other, the Siberian grovels before a most complete stock of these superior, the Chinaman bows, the African must strip before his chief, Eastern Nations bare the feet instead of the head, the Fugeans $2.50 to $17.50. hug like bears, we shake hands.

There is a subtle influence in the hand grasp that helps answer the question, why we are here and what we are here for, the absence of which makes hermits of men and gives to recluse his distinctive characteristicts. Without the hand grasp men grow morose and morbid; with it, life life has activity, energy, purpose. When men seem stiff and unbending we hold aloof and by that very means make them ten-fold more. that very means make them ten-fold more reserved, for know ye, the man who shakes no hands is miserable, or a fool.

The hand clasp shakes out animosity and shakes in good will, it shakes out hatred and shakes in love, it shakes out suspicion and shakes in trust, it shakes out fear and shakes in courage, it shakes out meloncholy and shakes in gladness, it shakes out care H and shakes in felicity. It makes friends of enemies, it roughens the road for the hyp-pocrite and makes it smooth for the mag-nanimous. He who is your enemy and shakes your hand and says, all is well, and smiles upon you is a hypocrite, "A man may smile and smile and be a villian," but be assured he suffers, for even white he shakes your hand, whether rhrough telepathy or other chan nel, you feel—yea know, that he has no part nor lot with you, and his is the misery when he knows you know. He cannot conceal this knowledge from you howev er much be may wish and strive to do so. Shake hands. Shake with your friends and make them closer, friends, shake with the reserved, shake with your enemy and make Summer Normal School him a friend, and if this does not bring him around it may be a bitter dose but you might try it as a last resort-the plan of the Fuegeans, hug him, and if this does not soften him why leave him to his idois but let's continue to shake.

Mr. Editor—I received the sample copy of your paper which you kindly sent me, and read it with much interest. Abbeville is the place of my nativity. I was brought up in the neighborhood of Lethe. Assisted in the surveying of the land when that institution was first put into operation. The surveying was done by P. B. Rogers, who was my brother-in-law, about 1830. In 1836 I joined the company of volunteers under Captain T. C. Parker to go to Florida to pick up the Seminole Indians. It was a three months campaign which we served through and returned home. In 1838 I came over into Georgia and am still here. I am 88 years of age, but memory reverts to early life. I love to think of irlends and loved ones whom I left behind. I would be pleased to hear from any one whom I knew there. I love to read the new from Abbeville.

Respectfully. J. M. Palmer. Respectfully,

Abbeville's Shade Trees.

There is nothing that contributes more to the beauty of a town and to the comfort of its citizens than graceful shade trees. In. this respect Abbeville is fortunate. Our city councils for years have given attention to tree planting, and most of our streets are now lined with trees in various stages of growth.

The heavily of the shade tree is approved.

Letter to Roche and Lomax.

Abbeville, S. C. Dear Sirs: A gallon saved is $1 or $5 earned. Devoe saves 2 or 3 gallons in 10. How much it worth a gallon? A gallon saves the painting too; and both ogether cost $4 or $5-$4 where labor is cheap; together cost $i or $5-$i where labor is cheap; $5 where labor is dear.

Our agents in Bridgeport, Conn, Hubbell & Wade Co, tell us; "There are a great many workingmen,s houses here. They used to paint lead-and-oil and take ten gallons. We have been selling them ten gallons Devoe lead-and-zinc, and have had, in every instance, two gallons returned." The proportion is often higher than that; we have known it five in ten; but that is exceptional. This is the explanation: Devoe is ground by machinery, and is ground fine; lead and-oil is mixed by hand, and isn't ground at all. Yours truly.

Yours truly. F. W. Devoe & Co. P. S. P. B. Speed sells our paint.
